

IRIS MURDOCH, MORAL PERCEPTION, AND VIRTUE ETHICS

PhD Seminar with Niklas Forsberg

Genoa, January 28-29, 2019

Under the auspices of the Northwestern Italy Consortium for PhD Program in Philosophy (FINO)

The seminar is aimed at PhD and MA students in philosophy, but junior researchers are welcome too.

HOW TO APPLY

Attendance is free, but registration is required. Transportation, accommodation, and meals have to be arranged and financed by the participants themselves. Apply by sending a CV and short motivation for attending the seminar.

We will reserve 2-3 slots for contributed papers (20 minutes presentation + 10 minutes discussion). Apply by sending a short abstract (200 words) to mariasilvia.vaccarezza@unige.it by January 5, 2019.

LECTURES ON:

1. “Perception and Prejudice: Elucidating attention and moral progress in Iris Murdoch’s philosophy through a reading of C. S. Lewis’s A Grief Observed”
2. “Try Walking in My Shoes: On the Limitations of Empathetic Readings of Literature”
3. “The Virtues of Perfectionism and The Imperfections of Virtue Ethics”

Organizers: Angelo Campodonico, Maria Silvia Vaccarezza

For more info: mariasilvia.vaccarezza@unige.it